BULLETIN

Los Angeles, Dec. 22—The automobile, a Hudson sedan, in which William Edward Hickman escaped to Seattle, was stolen from Frank R. Peck in Los Angeles by Hickman. Peck positively identified a photograph of Hickman, the police said.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 22—Has the "Fox" again "out-foxed" his pursuers?

Was William Edward Hickman, asserted kidnaper-slayer of 12-year-old Marion Parker able to get outside of Seattle before the armed ring was thrown around the city or is he somewhere within that grim circle, slinking here and there for a meal and a bed?

That was the question police asked themselves again and again as officers combed every rooming house and hotel in the city.

George V. Wiloughby, the haberdasher, who identified Hickman as a customer at his store, with a squad of detectives, was being speeded back and forth between headquarters and various points in the city.

But as the hours went on without his arrest, the question of whether "the Fox" had escaped the city became stronger and stronger.

Only 100 miles from Seattle is the Canadian border.

72 INDICTMENTS IN GRAND JURY REPORT

70 Persons To Be Arrested in Toledo Election Frauds Cases

Toledo, Dec. 22—Charged with false registration and other frauds during the election last November, 70 persons were under indictment by the county grand jury here today.

The grand jury reported yesterday after weeks of investigating the case, and returned 72 true bills. All of them were secret, but it was announced that 70 persons had been named. The bills will remain secret until those accused are placed under arrest.

One cause of the election irregularities was failure by police to suppress vice, gambling and bootlegging, according to the grand jury report.

"Obviously, persons engaged in continuous illegal conduct desire that officers who fail to enforce the law shall be continued in power," the report declared.

In the Seventh Ward, comprising a section of the downtown district occupied largely by rooming houses, there were many irregularities according to the report. A number of persons registered were unable to write, it was charged, and many failed to vote when it was announced the day before election that an investigation was to be made.

CHURCH WORKER SHOT BY UNIDENTIFIED ASSAILANT

Nelsonville, Dec. 22—Police here today were questioning several men from Beaumont a nearby village, where Miss Irene McDowell, church missionary in the mining camps of this vicinity, was shot and painfully wounded last night. Miss McDowell had stopped her car because of ice on the road when someone fired at her with a shotgun, about a half-dozen shot lodging in the back of her head. It is believed a farmer mistook her for a thief. Miss McDowell's condition is not believed serious.

Electric Light Company Has Big Inning With Arrival of Shortest Day In Year

TODAY, the shortest day in the year may have been short on daylight but it certainly was there when it came to handing out some real stuff in the way of weather. For the first day of winter the weatherman certainly did show just how big hearted he can be when he wants to. To be exact the day's quota of sunlight was nine hours and 15 minutes and the mercury shot to 44 above.

Daylight Christmas shopping came to an early end and travelers planning to complete a journey in a day by the sun, marveled at the apparent slowness of their progress. It's an ill wind, according to some old sage, so today's the electric light company's big inning. The meter will start clicking earlier today and in these days of unusually good radio programs and holidays festivities, it's easy to see why the electric light man should be beaming radiantly. Early morning travelers will welcome the good news of prospects of even a few minutes more on the front end of the day.

From now on until June 21 the days will gradually lengthen to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Perhaps the group that will welcome the trend toward earlier sunups are the milkmen who stope through the darkness on their early morning rounds.

Workmen who trudge to the factory and struggle home in the dark after a hard day likewise will welcome the time when they may spend some of the daylight hours around the house.

WATER PLANT USES UNIQUE RADIO DEVICE

Pressure Regulated by Wireless; Operated Under Government Station License

Marion has the only city water service operated in part by radio equipment.

This became known today at the office of the Marion Water Co. on E. Center-st, where it was announced that a radio device for regulating the city water pressure has proven a success after more than a year of experimental operation.

The system, believed to be the only one in existence, has been perfected as the result of experiments conducted by George Whysall, general manager, and his son, Charles C. Whysall, the company's chemist. They were assisted by Warren Leeka, a young Marion man who is a student in the engineering class at O. S. U. and who works for the water company during vacation time.

The radio device, which connects the up-town office of the company with its plant, about three miles west of the city, is operated under a government amateur radio station license. The official call number is 8-DDE.

Code Signals

By the operation of this equipment, water pressure is maintained at the proper standard through code signals transmitted from the pressure gauge at the up-town office, to the plant. Before the new system was developed, it was necessary to use the telephone at regular intervals to keep a check on the pressure.

The radio service relieves employes up-town of all work in regulating the pressure. The transmitting device at the office operates automatically every 30 minutes, running for a two-minute period. At that time an employe at the plant tunes in on the receiving set and by turning the single dial used in its operation, ascertains the exact water pressure. The equipment is so designed that wave lengths correspond with the amount of pressure and the code signal sounds when the pointer on the dial reaches the proper figure.

Inside Aerial

An inside aerial, a single strand of copper wire, is installed in a room at the rear of the up-town office.

The system operates on a low wave length, far below those in general broadcasting, so that there is absolutely no chance of interference.

MEXICO TO GREET MOTHER OF LINDY

Mrs. Lindbergh Expected in Southern Capital Late This Afternoon

Mexico City, Dec. 22—Mexico prepared today to welcome the mother of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Mrs. Lindbergh was expected to arrive by airplane at about 5 o'clock in the afternoon from Tampico, where she was to arrive at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Somewhere between Tampico and Mexico City, somewhere in the clouds, the plane carrying Mrs. Lindbergh will be met by "The Spirit of St. Louis," carrying her famous son.

Together the planes will land at Valbuena Field where Mrs. Lindbergh will be met by President Calles and Ambassador Morrow. She will be the house guest of Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow while she remains in Mexico.

Brownsville, Tex., Dec. 22—Flying in a slight mist and under a leaden sky, the huge tri-motored Ford airplane bearing Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh to Mexico City to join her son, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, took off from the rain-soaked army air field here at 8:23 o'clock this morning.

PANAMA CITY, Panama, Dec. 22—Panama wants Mrs. Lindbergh to accompany her famous son when he makes his flight here.

ENDURANCE FLIGHT START SCHEDULED

Clarence Chamberlin Challenges Bert Acosta To Contest in Clouds

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Dec. 22—With perfect weather conditions prevailing, Bert Acosta and Emile Burgin were expected to take off about noon today in their Fokker monoplane in an attempt to return the world's endurance record to the United States.

Delay of Acosta's attempt was caused today by the apparently sluggish lift of their plane under a load of 400 gallons of gasoline and by the failure of the motor to perform perfectly. It was stated that another start would be made at 2 o'clock this afternoon. If this is not successful, the flight is to be postponed until Dec. 27.

During the day Clarence Chamberlin, trans-atlantic flier who once set an endurance record with Acosta, appeared at the field and challenged Acosta to an "endurance contest." Chamberlin proposed that Acosta await completion of the Chamberlin Bellanca plane tests and that both men take off at the same time to determine who could remain longest aloft. Acosta has not yet accepted the challenge.

MRS. SNYDER, GRAY ARE DECLARED SANE

Governor Smith Gets Report of Alienists; To Set Date for Hearing

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 22—Governor Smith today had before him a report of the state board of alienists declaring Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray sane.

The report was made to the governor after the alienists had made an exhaustive examination. Both are scheduled to die in the electric chair Jan. 12 for the murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert Snyder, Queens County art editor.

While refusing to discuss the report, Governor Smith indicated that he would soon announce the date for the clemency hearing for Mrs. Snyder and Gray. This is expected to take place two or three days before the date of the execution.

Having been declared sane, the last hope Mrs. Snyder and Gray have of escaping the electric chair is clemency by Governor Smith, it was declared today at the capitol.

BARRACKS AT TRENTON GIVEN TO FRENCH CITY

Paris, Dec. 22 — The famous old American Revolutionary Army barracks, at Trenton, N. J., which has just been accepted by the Verdun municipal council as a gift from the American Legion, will be transferred to France stone by stone and reconstructed as a replica of the original. It will be used as a school for girls.

CITY LIBRARY IMPROVEMENT IS ARRANGED

Entire Interior of Building To Be Redecorated; New Lights Planned

Plans for improvements at the City Library building, which will include redecoration of the entire interior and installation of new lighting fixtures, have been completed by the board of trustees and work is expected to start within the next two weeks.

Approximately $1,400 will be expended for the improvements, which will be the first made in the last 18 years. Lack of funds has made it impossible to make repairs and improvements up until this time and as a result the point has been reached where the work now planned is an absolute necessity.

Contract for painting and redecorating has been awarded to William N. Crouse & Son at approximately $1,100. The lighting contract will probably be let today or Friday.

Committee in Charge

The contract awards are in the hands of a committee of trustees consisting of S. H. DeLong, J. D. Williamson and Miss Louise Cunningham. The committee will report to the board at its monthly meeting the first Tuesday in January.

Tax revenue for upkeep of the library in the past has been used entirely for operating expenses and the purchase of new books. For more than a year an average of 100 new books have been added monthly so that at the present time the number of volumes available for borrowers is the largest and most complete in the history of the library.

The library circulation is much larger than last year, a recent report showing an increase of 2,200 books.

AMERICANS IN PARIS YEARNING FOR HOME

Eighty-Four Stranded Yanks Given Aid in Last Few Weeks

Paris, Dec. 22—American "refugees from the Volstead Law" have been overcome with sentiment and a desire to return to their homes for Christmas.

The American Aid Society during past week has helped to repatriate 81 stranded Americans, all confessing a sentimental dread of spending the holidays away from their homes. Each case was one that previously had preferred to live in a country "where there is no legislative curtailment of personal liberty," according to Miss Henriette Meyer, secretary of the society.

"They seem to have become quickly fed up with this particular freedom they desired so earnestly erstwhile," said Miss Meyer. "Not one could be encouraged to stick it out a while longer. The approach of Christmas has brought to them a powerful wave of homesickness. It was useless to mention the jolly Christmas trees and parties planned here in Paris by the American Legion and the two American churches and the Salvation Army. They all wanted to get home. All of those who want to get home for Christmas won't be there."

It is not difficult to pick up a hard luck tale from stranded Americans in Paris these days. Some of them come from students, some from those who came to France to live on fixed incomes and over-spent their allowances, and a few who came here to earn a living and found that it was difficult for any but a Frenchman to get employment in Paris.

GROWN UPS, TOO, LIKE TO PLAY WITH SOLDIERS

Berlin, Dec. 22—Not only boys but some adults prefer toy soldiers as Christmas gifts, it was revealed today by a leading German toy manufacturer. He estimated that there are 20,000 adult collectors of toy soldiers in Germany, many of whom look forward with as much interest as the youngsters to see what variations mark the new output of little lead warriors. According to the manufacturer many of the collectors take their hobby as seriously as collectors of postage stamps and old furniture.

REAL ESTATE COMPANIES ARE NAMED DEFENDANTS

Columbus, Dec. 22—The first suit ever recorded against the State Board of Real Estate Examiners was on file in common pleas court here today, when Isadore Kaufman, Cleveland real estate dealer petitioned the court for restoration of his real estate license which the examiners revoked recently.

His license was revoked because of his conduct in transacting real estate deals, according to the State Board of Real Estate Examiners.

JURORS PLEAD GEORGE REMUS BE RELEASED

Sign Petition Asking Judge To Grant Either Immediate Hearing or Bond

SET FOR WEDNESDAY

Interesting Situation Foreseen When Prosecutor and Remus Must About Face

Cincinnati, Dec. 22—Ten men and two women jurors who found George Remus "not guilty on the sole grounds of insanity" after trying him for the murder of his wife, Imogene, have signed a petition asking that he be given an immediate hearing or released on bond in time for Christmas, Remus announced to reporters here today.

Remus showed the petition to a representative of International News Service and said he expected to present it to probate court today.

The petition says that the 12 jurors who signed it, in returning their now famous not guilty verdict, did so after a fair and impartial consideration of the evidence and that their action in signing the petition is prompted by a desire "to return the defendant to his mother and family by Christmas."

Ask His Release

In view of this, they ask the probate judge to advance the sanity examination for immediate hearing or else set a bond for Remus' release.

The "not guilty on sole grounds of insanity" hearing forces Remus to go before probate court for a sanity hearing. The date for this was set at next Wednesday.

An interesting situation is expected to arise when the hearing does take place. Prosecutor Charles Taft, who contended during the trial that Remus was sane when the murder was committed, and introduced alienists to support this contention, will have to reverse his stand and seek to show, by the same evidence that Remus was insane.

Remus, on the other hand, who pleaded "transitory insanity," must also do an about-face and introduce evidence to show that he is sane, else he will be sent to a state asylum.

TAX COLLECTION IS AT USUAL AVERAGE

Payments Evenly Divided Between City and Rural Property Owners

Hundreds of Marion County residents are joining the pleasant pastime of Christmas shopping with the not so pleasant task of paying taxes.

This was indicated today at the county treasurer's office, where the semi-annual tax collection is in progress with receipts increasing daily. Yesterday the payments passed the $10,000 mark, th slargest daily total reported since the collection started about a week ago.

Tax receipts are running at about the usual average for this stage of the collection, the treasurer states. Payments are about evenly divided between property owners in the city and those residing in villages and rural districts.

Collections totalling more than $100,000 will be made at village banks throughout the county in January. In accordance with a custom of long standing, property owners in these villages and surrounding territory will have the opportunity to pay at these banks, thus saving them the trouble of making a trip to the county seat.

Dates for the bank collections will be announced early in January.

YOUTH MUST DIE FOR DOUBLE KILLING

Intervention by Donahey Only Chance Hewitt Has of Escaping Chair

Columbus, Dec. 22—Seventeen-year-old Floyd Hewitt must die in the electric chair at Ohio Penitentiary Jan. 6, as atonement for killing Mrs. Celia Brown and her five-year-old son, Fred, Jr., in Conneaut last February.

The Ohio Supreme Court, which yesterday refused to review Hewitt's case, today set Jan. 6 as the date for his execution.

Hewitt's only chance of escaping the electric chair now is intervention by Governor Donahey. Unless the governor takes action, the youth will be led to the death chamber not two weeks from tomorrow and will be the youngest ever electrocuted in Ohio and the second youngest ever executed in the state.

RAICHLEY WILL TRIAL IS SET

Suit Will Be Heard in Wyandot County Court Jan. 16

Trial of the suit brought to set aside the will of Burr Raichley, former Marion resident, will begin in the common pleas court of Wyandot County on Jan. 16. This became known yesterday when assignment of jury cases for January was announced by Judge Earl Carter, who will preside at the hearing.

The Raichley case is to be heard in Wyandot County as the result of a change of venue granted by Judge Scofield of the Marion County court. The order was issued on application filed by relatives of Raichley who are seeking to set aside his will and who expressed the opinion that a fair and impartial trial might not be obtained here. This belief was based on the fact that an unusually large number of Marion County residents are interested in the case.

The larger part of the Raichley estate, estimated at about $200,000, was bequeathed to the Marion Masonic Temple Co.

GERMAN INSTRUMENT RUSHED TO RESCUE

New Life-Saving Device May Be Used In S-4 Disaster

Boston, Dec. 22—A new German instrument that has revived persons four hours after life was believed to have left the body by drowning and 48 hours after suffocation was rushed to Provincetown today aboard the U. S. S. Pennacook by Lieut. George C. Calnan, of the Brooklyn, N. Y., navy yard.

The device was brought to the attention of naval authorities in New York City. The only three sets in the country were quickly assembled and brought here.

If the men in the S-4 are reached, the instruments will be put to work. They pump oxygen from a tank by natural breathing methods, a tube being attached to the mouth with arm bands to fit the arms naturally with each intake of the oxygen. Lieut. Calnan said they may supplant the pulmotor, which has been known to rupture blood vessels in the lungs.

Maag Brothers, also, were permitted to extend their operations from Marion to Cardington.

ITALY ADOPTS GOLD

Mussolini Stabilizes Lira by Financial Move

Rome, Dec. 22—Italy was back to the gold standard in currency today and throughout the nation the press extolled Premier Mussolini for this financial move.

The stabilization of the lira was effective at midnight and followed a two and a half hour emergency cabinet meeting called suddenly by Premier Mussolini last night.

The Italian lira is now on a basis of 19 to the dollar; 92.46 to the pound sterling; and 3.76 to the gold lira.

Sixteen months ago the lira was forced to the low exchange rate of 150 to the dollar.

DIVERS FORCE AIR INTO SUB ON SEA BOTTOM

Only Hope Is That Oxygen Will Revive Men If Unconscious, Not Dead

PUSH SALVAGE WORK

Adjustment of Pontoons and Raising Operations Will Take Two Days

Provincetown, Mass., Dec. 22—While a constant flow of oxygen was being pumped into the forward compartment of the sunken submarine S-4 where six survivors once hammered out their pleas for help, divers at noon today continued work around the hull of the vessel in preparation for salvage operations.

At that hour all was silence within the crypt. But some of the experts gathered here still persisted in the hope that the men were only unconscious and would presently revive and signal to those above.

Meanwhile the divers wallowed in the knee deep ooze and mud, preparatory to hooping the huge chains under the forward half that will eventually be attached to pontoons for raising.

Forty-eight, or even 24 hours ago, this flow of air would have provided a welcome drink to the six sailors who once lived.

First Time Performed

The feeding of oxygen into the S-4, a feat performed for the first time in the history of marine rescue operations—has been going on since 10 o'clock last night.

C. H. Scott, the last diver down, returned to the surface at 3 o'clock this morning. He reported, as did his comrades who preceded him, that there was no sign of life within the crypt of steel. The submarine tender Falcon oscillated to the S-4 through the night but received no answering signals.

Shortly after 7 o'clock this morning divers resumed operations, making a survey of condition near the bow of the S-4 preparatory to an attempt to attach pontoons to raise the forward part.

The weather continues favorable despite a persisting storm warning. A northeast wind is blowing but the water is calm enough to permit diving operations.

Divers reported today that there is less mud around the submarine's bow than they expected and if fair weather continues, pontoons will be immediately adjusted to each end of a chain slung below the S-4's hull.

The adjustment of the pontoons and subsequent raising operations will take

BELIEVES SIX MEN MAY BE YET ALIVE

New York, Dec. 22—If the six men entombed since last Saturday afternoon in the torpedo room of the sunken submarine S-4 off Cape Cod were able, in their last conscious hours, to employ the simple precautions known to most submarine men, there is a chance that all, or some of them, are still alive this afternoon.

This was the announcement this afternoon of Simon Lake, internationally known submarine expert and author of numerous scientific volumes, who has wired his computations to Lieutenant Commander Ellsworth in charge of the S-4 salvage operations at Provincetown, Mass.

KING EXPRESSES SORROW OVER S-4

London, Dec. 22—King George sent a message to President Coolidge today expressing grief over the S-4 disaster. The message, which was given out by the foreign office, follows:

"I am much grieved at the sad disaster to the United States Navy through the sinking of the submarine S-4 involving so great a loss of life. I desire to assure you and the American people and more especially the bereaved families of my heartfelt sympathy in their national calamity."

INQUIRY JAN. 4

Navy's Investigation of S-4 Disaster Being Arranged

Washington Dec. 22—The navy's official investigation into the S-4 disaster will get under way in Boston on Jan. 4.

An order issued by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur designated Rear Admiral Richard H. Jackson to head the court of inquiry, which will consist of Rear Admiral Julian Latimer, Capt. Joseph V. Ogan, and Commander L. E. Bratton, a submarine expert. The court will meet at Boston Navy Yard on Jan. 4 and "thoroughly investigate all the circumstances" in connection with the S-4 tragedy as well as seek to "determine responsibility" therefor.

Meanwhile, it is probable that Congress will initiate an investigation of its own when the holiday recess is ended on Jan. 4.

DRIVE FOR CORRUPT PRACTICES ACT ON

McKellar Would Have Congress Assume Control of Congressional Primaries

Washington, Dec. 22—A drive for a new corrupt practices act, by which Congress would assume statutory control of congressional primaries before the 1928 campaigns get under way, has been launched by Sen. Kenneth McKellar, Republican, of Tennessee.

McKellar announced today he would seek action early in the new year on his bill, drafted to meet the objections raised by the supreme court, in the Newberry case. His measure would place strict limits on the amounts of money to be expended by candidates for either the House or Senate in either their primary or election campaigns.

The bill would specify that a "primary or nominating convention is hereby declared a part of and inseparably connected with the election machinery by which candidates may be elected to the House of Representatives under the constitution—[ory to the Senate under the seventeenth amendment."

The bill would force all primary or election candidates for Congress to file expenditure reports both before and after their contests and would carry all the old restrictions relative to promising offices to supporters. It would invoke new limits though on the amounts allowed various candidates as campaign funds.

Columbus, Dec. 22—Several Ohio State University students who live in and near Marion County, have been selected to membership in the Townsend Agricultural Society at the university this fall.

The Townsend Agricultural Society is an organization composed entirely of students interested in research work in the agricultural field. Membership is restricted to students who are planning to obtain degrees from the university in the College of Agriculture.

Frank Furniss, of Green Camp, a freshman at Ohio State, is one of the students who have been selected to membership in the society.

Other students residing in the vicinity of Marion County include: Charles F. Fleegner, of Ridgeway, Hardin County; Ernest Morse, of Milford Center, Union County; Reino Reese, of Galion, Crawford County; Lester Stone, of Delaware, Delaware County.

Stone and Morse are enrolled as seniors at the university, while Reese is a junior and Fleegner a sophomore.

What's A Democrat? Asked By Members of Congress

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22—Congress is faced with the necessity of deciding what constitutes a true and tried Democrat.

This perplexing problem must be solved before Sam Pickard of Kansas is confirmed as a majority member of the Federal Radio Commission.

The circumstances, as disclosed today, are as follows:

Mr. Pickard, 32 years old, was a combat aviator in the American Expeditionary Forces during the World War, and wears a silver insignia of those veterans who were wounded in action with the enemy.

Owing to his age, prior to the outbreak of hostilities Pickard never had an opportunity to vote nor to officially express his political preference. After the war he came to Washington and the Agricultural Department and swore that time never was registered nor voted.

While technically holding legal residence in Kansas Pickard has not resided there since the war.

His appointment by President Coolidge as a Democratic member of the radio commission was sponsored by Senator Curtis and Secretary Hoover, both Republicans of Kansas, and Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, causing some of the Democratic members of the interstate commerce committee of the Senate, to question Pickard's Democracy.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS APPROVE TAX RATES

Mt. Gilead, Dec. 22—The Morrow County Commissioners has approved the amounts and rates as determined by the budget commission for Morrow County taxes. There will be a total levy of 5 mills, 3.60 of which is within the 15 mill limitation and 1.40 of which is outside the 15 mill limitation. This is estimated to bring returns of approximately $137,908 in taxes.

One of the major jobs on this earth is to undertake to get a man's mind off his worries.

We'd think the progress of medical knowledge was slow indeed if we didn't look back fifty years.

NERVOUSNESS KEPT THIS LADY A HEALTH-WRECK

Stomach Indigestion Miserable; Says Konjola Gave Her Amazing Relief.

"Oftimes, nervousness and stomach troubles go hand in hand," said The Konjola Man yesterday at the Stump & Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, Marion, where crowds of men and women are now calling daily to find out about this celebrated Konjola medicine.

"The nervous person may not be aware of stomach trouble, but very often the stomach is disordered, and at times it is the real seat of this terrible nervousness," continued the Konjola Man. "A nervous person wakes in the morning tired and exhausted. As the day advances his strength increases and at bedtime the sufferer is usually at his best, while some persons are just a bundle of nerves all the time—the least excitement nearly drives them frantic. As a rule, constipation, headaches, melancholia, or blues, are very common, and the sufferer seems to look only on the dark side of life—these things make nervousness a dreaded ailment."

This Konjola, which The Konjola Man is introducing in Marion, has given such amazing relief in so many cases of nervous indigestion and stomach troubles, that it is declared that no suffering person can afford not to try it. Many people say Konjola seems to go at once to the very source of such misery. For instance, just a few days ago, Mrs. E. E. Landon, living on East Street, Prospect, Ohio (near Marion), made the following statement in which she told of the relief she derived by taking Konjola:

"I just feel fine now, and I think Konjola is wonderful," said Mrs. Landon. "I suffered terribly with nervousness and stomach trouble. In fact, it made little difference what I ate. I was sure to be in agony from indigestion. I would bloat up with gas, and it was almost impossible for me to sleep at nights, due to shattered nerves. I used to feel pretty bad every morning, but now, your Konjola has benefited me so much that every morning I feel fit and fine. This is because I sleep so well. And with my nervousness and indigestion gone, I just feel like I have a new hold on life. As I said, I think Konjola is wonderful, and I am glad to recommend it to help others afflicted like I was."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump and Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Konjola is now being sold by all of the good druggists in every nearby town of this whole section.—Adv.

rding High Principal Envolves Plan Eliminate Failures Among Students

...e few high school principals ... plan by which student fail... eliminated, at least in part, ...rshall, Harding High School ...is week put into operation ... an unique method which ... prove a success.

... involves two teachers, the ... failed, the school principal ...'s parents, and difficulty being reached and remedy found through a process of questioning of those concerned.

"Success of the venture rests with co-operation of the faculty and parents," Mr. Marshall said in explaining the system. "It means additional work for the faculty but will, I feel sure, prove of inestimable value to the scholastic standing of the school."

Consultation Blank

By the new plan a student who fails in any subject over the six weeks period from one grade card report to another, will have his difficulties recorded in what is to be known as a "consultation blank." The report will contain the student's name, the subject in which he failed and teacher of that subject, his reasons for being backward in that particular phase of high school work, his teacher's opinion of the trouble, the opinion of a teacher named as his counselor and the date.

The child is first interviewed by his first period in the morning class teacher, who records what he gives as his reasons for failure in the "student's report." He is then interviewed by his teacher in the subject in which he failed and that, together with his counselor's report is also recorded.

Parents Consulted

When necessary parents are consulted by the counselor or teacher or by Principal Marshall into whose hands the reports are finally given. Special attention is given the child who fails in more than one subject for the six weeks, Mr. Marshall said.

Every effort is made by the principal and teachers with the parents' assistance, to remove the child's difficulty. Strenuous measures are taken with the failing student only when every effort upon the part of his superiors fails to show improvement.

The plan, when put into practice this week with close to 200 one-subject failures, proved to be a success, in most cases the teacher and counselor's interviews contributing to almost immediate improvement.

CHAMBERLIN DOLLS

Thousands of Tiny Figures Set in Likewise Tiny Planes

Berlin, Dec. 22—Clarence Chamberlin, the transatlantic flier, is the first American ever to be immortalized as a German doll. Thousands of tiny, sawdust figures labelled "Chamberlin" are selling this Christmas in the cockpits of toy airplanes called "Miss Columbia." It looks as if no German child will be content unless his gifts include this remainder of the Chamberlin-Levine flight to Germany. "Miss Columbia" is a perfect miniature reproduction of the famous transocean plane.

PLAN TO SELL COPIES OF "OLD IRONSIDES"

Duplicates of Famous Painting Offered To Help Rebuild Ship

Sale of copies of the original painting of "Old Ironsides" by Gordon Grant, as a means of obtaining the remainder of the money necessary to complete the rebuilding of the ship, was announced today by Chief Turret Capt. John B. Shanks, who is in charge of the navy recruiting station at 217 S. Main-st.

Hundreds of thousands of copies of the picture have been made and are being shipped to all parts of the country where they will be placed on sale in an effort to obtain the remaining $100,000 necessary to restore the ship, more than $250,000 having already been raised by popular subscription.

The pictures which have been received at the navy recruiting station measure 14 by 18 inches and are in full color, an exact reproduction of the original painting.

In addition to the almost complete rebuilding of the vessel, the money will be used to restore it to as near its original condition as possible, with regard to equipment. It will be fitted with all the rigging and sails, furniture and equipment as when she waged battle on the princes off the coast of Barbary and gave a good accounting of herself in the war of 1812.

Included in the equipment will be an old fashioned anchor and hempen cable, old type guns, whale oil lamps and such other articles of a wartime nature, including boarding pikes and cutlasses.

Following the rebuilding of the vessel, the boat, which is now in the Boston harbor, will be taken on a tour of the United States wherever navigable streams will permit.

WOULD HONOR

Senator Would Detail Exploits of America's Heroines

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22—The exploits of American "Amazons" in time of war from the days of "Molly" Pitcher down to the World War, would be compiled and published by a proposed "American Women in War Commission" under a bill sponsored today by Senator Bratton, Democrat, of New Mexico.

Bratton declared the women had helped their men to fight and win every war fought by the United States but that no permanent record of their heroic conduct has been compiled. His bill would give this task to a commission of three members, to be appointed by the president.

BRIGHTWOOD SECTION CAMPAIGN PLANNED

Special Sales Drive To Be Launched Jan. 2 by Toledo Real Estate Operator

Plans for a sales campaign to be launched on Jan. 2 for marketing lots in Brightwood addition were announced today by Cliff Ioset, Toledo real estate man who has been appointed sales manager.

Although he came here primarily for the purpose of directing this campaign Mr. Ioset says that he will probably locate in Marion permanently.

According to present indications, he states, practically all of the platted section of the Brightwood subdivision should be sold within a few months. Since coming to Marion Mr. Ioset says he has made a survey of the situation and finds that there is a big demand for high-grade home sites, such as are found in this allotment.

All Facilities In

The Landscape Architecture Co., which owns the property, delayed starting a sales drive until all of the lots were provided with every facility for modern home construction. This work has been completed, gas, city water and sewer lines being installed.

Five new homes have been built or under process of construction, so that building development in the addition is already well under way. There are 62 lots to be offered for sale in the campaign to start next month.

After these lots are disposed of, the remainder of the subdivision, a section located south of the one already platted, will be laid out in lots and placed on the market.

The sub-division extends from Mt. Vernon-av on the north to the Vernon Heights-blvd on the south and has natural scenic attractions which make it an ideal location for high-class dwellings.

Mr. Ioset will announce details of the sales plan in advertisements to appear in January.

The new sales manager has had several years of experience in various branches of the real estate business and was formerly connected with the George B. Rieaby Co., a realty firm which deals extensively in sub-divisions in Toledo and other large cities.

Mr. Ioset will have his headquarters with Hayes Thompson, attorney for the Landscape Architecture Co., in the Marion County Bank building, and also at the Brightwood addition office on Mt. Vernon-av.

COMMISSIONERS APPROVE BICKEL DITCH PROJECT

Petition for construction of the Bickel Ditch, in Richland Township, was granted by the board of county commissioners at a hearing held yesterday. County Surveyor Leavens was instructed to proceed with preparation of plans and estimates.

The ditch, petitioned for by Fred Bickel, is to be of tile and about a half mile in length.

BELIEVE ABANDONED CAR WAS STOLEN AT TOLEDO

A Nash coupe, believed to have been stolen and abandoned by its thieves when they ran out of gas, was found along the Marion-Delaware road four miles south of the city yesterday and is now in charge of sheriff James A. Deal who is making an effort to locate the owner. The sheriff says that the car is thought to be the property of a Toledo resident.

DIVERS FORCE AIR INTO SUBMARINE S-4

Only Hope Is That Oxygen Will Revive Men If Unconscious, Not Dead

two days under the most favorable conditions, Lieut. Com. Edward Ellsburg, directing the salvage work, told International News Service today.

Under a sky powder-sugared with stars, the salvage fleet worked throughout the night. At dawn, the double hose attached to the S-C tube of the S-4's torpedo compartment still was throbbing oxygen into the chamber of death.

"If there is any life left on board the S-4 we hope that the fresh air being supplied may revive any who still lives but may be unconscious," said Lieutenant Commander Ellsburg.

Ellsburg estimated that four hours of pumping should resuscitate an unconscious man. More than double that time has elapsed and there has been no message received from inside the sub. However, it was admitted that the victims might be in such a mental and physical condition that they would be unable to signal.

Work in Icy Depths

It was "Tug" Wilson and Joe Eiben, working in the icy depths from 9 o'clock until 10:30 last night, who attached the air line to the T-shaped "blister" on the hull of the submarine.

The S-C submarine communication tubes are used for oscillating purposes. The success of the air-supplying measure depended upon whether or not the crew within had left the inner valve open.

The divers determined that this valve must have been left open and that oxygen was going into the inside of the torpedo room through reading the gauge attached to the air hose. The reading showed that two pounds pressure of air was pouring through the hull. This was raised evtnually to 12 pounds pressure when another air line was attached to the second vent of the S-C tube by Diver Tom Eadie at 11:45 P. M.

LYNCHING TOTAL LESS THIS YEAR THAN LAST

Washington, Dec. 22— There were fewer lynchings in the south this year than last, Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee institute, told President Coolidge today. This year's figure, however, was greater than three years ago, Moton said.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Why Men Love a Grafter

If you want a man to love you, ask him to DO something for you.

You may be perfectly capable of doing it for your yourself—but don't! Give him the thrill of doing it FOR you.

* * *

A man will do and do and DO for a woman, and adore her more with every sacrifice he makes for her.

And by that same token, a woman may do and do and DO for a man, and he will merely accept it as his divine right and all in a day's work.

The loneliest woman on earth are the capable, efficient, self-reliant women who insist on earning their own living, running their own cars, carrying their own suit-cases and paying their own cab-fares.

Why do men love a grafter? Why does a man adore and cherish the pretty mollusk who keeps his nose to the grindstone and looks on every day as Chrsistmas day?

Because every man delights to play Lord Bountiful, Santa Claus and Fairy Godfather! He loves to shine in his own eyes as the bestower of favors and bearer of gifts. It thrills him to be told how kind and wonderful and generous he is even while he is conscious that a woman is figuratively easing his pocket-book away from him.

It's the woman with the "gimmes" and the "help-me", who creeps into his heart by a side door and gets a stronghold on his affections and his protective instinct and his vanity.

While the woman who CAN take care of herself and WILL take of herself will always be allowed to do it without protest.

This is awfully hard on a square, fair-minded woman who wants to do her share and to "play cricket" in the matrimonial firm. It is harder still on a woman with the mother-instinct who yearns to coddle her man and sacrifice herself in order to make his life one long sweet dream.

But it is man's primitive instinct, his ruling passion—and he just can't help it!

The old-fashioned notion that a man should marry the woman whose life he had saved, was not based on chivalry but on plain masculine psychology. Having made the supreme sacrifice and risked his life for her, he felt so noble and magnificent and thrilled with himself that he just naturally wanted to go right on playing hero and divinity to her for the rest of his days.

The "dangerous woman" around a business office is not the conscientious efficient one who takes all the burdens off a man's shoulders, relieves him of all the harrowing petty details and is as necessary to him as his right hand.

It is the cute, helpless baby eyed little thing who comes in and asks him to help her, to show her how to do her work, to give her a chance or lend her money or "buy her a bow-wow"—the Gentle Grafter!

CHILD AT HOSPITAL LOOKING FOR SANTA

Pretty Four-Year-Old Charity Patient Wants Some Playthings

Unless Santa Claus makes a special trip to City Hospital there's a pretty little four-year-old girl who isn't going to have any Christmas. And how would you or any one else feel if you were four years old and pretty and didn't find a single thing in your stocking next Sunday morning?

This particular little girl, who by the way has blue eyes and light silky hair, has been a charity patient at the hospital since last August. In spite of the good care she receives at the hands of Miss Williams, superintendent of nurses and her corps of assistants, little Goldylocks weighs only 25 pounds. She is able to walk about the corridor for a little while at a time but spends most of the time in her bed. She does want some playthings, and she does need some clothing, including underwear, stockings and dresses.

HOLIDAY PROGRAM

Waddel Ladies Home Guests Are Entertained by W. C. T. U.

Members of the Frances Willard W. C. T. U. held their program meeting yesterday afternoon at the Waddel Ladies' Home, E. Center-st. A program in keeping with Christmas, opened with community singing of "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing" and Miss Pauline Zachmann entertained with a piano number. Mrs. A. L. Woods contributed a vocal number, "The Christmas Story," and Mrs. H. Edmund Hill told "The Christmas Story." A solo by Mrs. Woods was followed by a reading, "Only a Pair of Stockings to Mend," by Mrs. A. G. Lilley and the program concluded with the singing of America and the W. C. T. U. benediction. The program was in charge of Mrs. William Sifritt, evangelistic superintendent.

Mrs. Addison Bain and Mrs. William Sifritt were in charge of the distribution of gifts to the guests at the home. Guests aside from the members and guests of the home were Mrs. H. Edmund Hill, Mrs. A. L. Wood, Mrs. Ophelia Boyd, Miss Pauline Zachman, this city, and Mrs. Mary Lucas, Findlay. The next meeting will be Jan. 18 at the home of Mrs. George Dutton, 255 N. State-st.

It's all right for a girl to seek a model husband, but she should be sure he is a working model.

AMERICANS WILL SPEND MILLIONS FOR CHRISTMAS

SEARCH CENTERS IN ORANGE COUNTY

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 22—Search for William Edward Hickman, alleged slayer of little Marion Parker, centered today around Santa Ana, in Orange County.

Squads of heavily-armed guards were rushed to that place last night on the heels of a report that Hickman had been seen at Ontario near Santa Ana, and had asked directions concerning the "least used" road to Tia Juana.

He was driving a small coupe, according to the reports.

Hickman was positively identified by G. F. Kaufman, Orange County resident, who, it was said, knew him when he worked in a Los Angeles bank, according to information at the sheriff's office here.

Kaufman rushed to the nearest telephone and called Los Angeles police.

Guards have been posted along every known highway in the county, while sheriff's posses, augmented by citizen volunteers, are scouring the wood between.

22 DEAD AND INJURED AS POLISH CASTLE BURNS

Warsaw, Dec. 22—Eleven persons including Alfred Freyer, Poland's crack Olympic sprinter, were killed in a fire early today, which destroyed the ancient castle of Count Zdalisaw at Daikow, near Jaroslau. Eleven persons were injured. The castle contained the most famous picture gallery in Poland. A Rembrandt and other canvasses by old masters were burned.

So much more vigor

—when the system is cleansed of poisons we all have

Do you know that poisons form all the time in your system? They get into the blood stream and so rob you of the vigor, life, youth and energy you should have. Hardly anyone escapes them. Food wastes accumulate and fermentation takes place. As many as 36 of these ever-forming poisons are already known to science.

But nature has provided a natural sort of antidote. In a scientifically pure state this antidote is available to everybody under the trade name of Nujol. Nujol is a unique substance unlike anything else known to man. It cannot be absorbed by the body or any of the organs of the body. At the same time, it has an affinity for body poisons. It takes hold of them, absorbs them, and carries them out of the system safely and harmlessly. It also softens waste matter and brings about normal evacuation of the intestines. Gets rid of poisons, gets rid of food wastes, tends to heal and soothe irritated membranes. Contains no drugs or medicines. Absolutely harmless.

Nujol contains no drugs or medicine. It's in a class by itself. You can take it with perfect safety under any conditions. It won't cause gas or griping pains, or affect the stomach or kidneys.

Every corner druggist has Nujol. Make sure you get the genuine. Look for the Nujol bottle with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle. Don't delay, get Nujol today.

Judging by the advance samples, it's going to prove one of those delightful winters about which the old inhabitants love to speak.

Old Man Winter arrived promptly on time this afternoon, but the weather people intimate that he will not attempt to put on any spectacular stunts for at least a day or two—if then.

"Since learning that Mussolini has actually barred jazz out of Italy," remarked the fellow who lives next door on the way down town this morning, "I have been wondering if maybe what America needs for what's ailing her isn't a dictator."

Smith W. Brookhart says that "one-third of the American people, its farmers, are getting less than one-tenth of the national income." It's just possible that too many of the aforesaid one-third are trying to follow Smith Wildman's example of jimmying their way into politics.

Naturally, this is the season of the year when the pacificists show marked activity in making war against the toy soldier. Be the danger of the toy soldier what it may, its influence is infinitely to be preferred to that of pacificism.

Right at a time when hope went high for bringing more friendly relations between France and Italy, a member of the French chamber of deputies arises and announces that surrendering mastery of the Mediterranean is too high a price to pay for peace with Italy. Somebody is always trying to spill the peace beans.

Some of the principals of the Chicago schools are rapping Superintendent McAndrew because of his attempt to perfect Windy City school children in the "three R's." For that, a great many people will be inclined to commend him.

The recent sample "companionate marriages" haven't progressed sufficiently far to speak definitely concerning one possibility in connection with them, but it's very probable that time will demonstrate that, in proportion to their number, just as many "companionate" wives will shoot their husbands in the back in self-defense as the regulation variety.

The wife of Conway Tearle, the "perfect lover" of the screen, asks that a writ be issued against him for contempt of court for his alleged failure to pay her $2,300 alimony. Thus we have another exemplification of the fact that the perfect lover doesn't always prove to be the perfect provider.

The friends of Senator Reed, of Missouri, declare that he will not be a candidate for reelection to the senate, regardless of the outcome of his designs upon the presidency. At this distance it looks as though Jim is surrendering a good trading proposition. Some people might be willing to pay even as high a price as that to get him out of the senate.

Testifying in the Sinclair-Burns contempt hearing, Juror Kidwell swore that the assistant district attorney in the Sinclair-Fall trial had intimidated him into signing the affidavit in which he, Kidwell, charged that he had been approached by a Burns detective and this, too, after he had told the assistant district attorney that the charge was not true. It begins to look as though charges of crookedness can no longer be confined to one side in the Sinclair-Fall matter.

Faithful Service Recognized.

How the management of the Susquehanna Silk mills had presented fine gold watches to three of its employes who had served it for a quarter of a century was told in our issue of Wednesday.

This custom, which has long been followed by the Susquehanna people, is a very pleasing one. Of course, it is understood that such presentations are not made in recompense for faithful service, but rather as a mark of the management's appreciation of it; that employes who serve it long and faithfully may have a token, something tangible, with them always to remind them that those for whom they labor are appreciative of their service.

It's a matter for congratulation that an industry thus sees fit to present such reminders, and it's a matter for congratulation of the recipients—and Miss Brigel, Miss Hagerty and Mr. Krautter should so consider it—that their service has covered a term of such length and been of such faithfulness as to merit such recognition.

There's a lot over and beyond the intrinsic value of such remembrances. There's the sentiment which prompts them and satisfaction which comes with their possession far beyond that which such tokens would possess were they acquired by purchase.

The Eligibility of Hoover.

We never posed as a politician, but questioning the constitutional eligibility of Herbert Hoover for the presidency doesn't look to us like good politics. That course may, or may not, do harm to the secretary's candidacy, but it is sure to do things to the candidacy of any aspiring gentleman who raises the question or seeks to profit by it.

It is pointed out that the fourth paragraph of Section 1 of Article II of the constitution states that any one to be eligible to the presidency must "have been fourteen years a resident within the United States." It is cited that for many years before he became food administrator in the Wilson administration, Mr. Hoover was much in Europe and in the Orient pursuing his work as a mining engineer.

He was in London when the World war began, and upon the recommendation of Walter Hines Page, then American ambassador to England, was given complete charge of the Belgian relief work.

This work continued intensively for two years, and during most of that period Mr. Hoover lived in London, listing his address in "Who's Who" at that time as Red House, Hornton street, London.

The magazine article in which the question was revived—it was brought out in 1920—naturally holds that the constitution means continuous residence of fourteen years preceding election.

The friends of Mr. Hoover admit that he was absent from this country for the better part of two years in 1914 and 1915, engaged in Belgian relief work, established years before the World war, and that, after all, the United States supreme court has held that "residence is a matter of intent, established by evidence of this intent."

Proof of Mr. Hoover's intent to retain his American residence, they hold, includes the fact that in 1908 he established his domicile at Palo Alto, California; that he kept his family there almost continuously until they removed to Washington when he became food administrator; that he sent his children to school in Palo Alto; that he visited his home as often as his duties would permit.

As we stated, we are not a politician, but were we in politics we would hate to take the chances of the reaction to the raising of such a question as this, especially so when the two years alleged and admitted to have been spent by Mr. Hoover outside the country were devoted to such a work of mercy as was his.

And there is another reason or two why we would forego such a question were we in politics. The first is that it would be tantamount to a confession that an opponent was too strong to be overcome in any other way. The second is that were we a candidate for a presidential nomination we would be above resorting to any such plan to put an opponent out of the way.

"If you have no camera," little King Michael, of Roumania, told a reporter, "you are not a newspaperman." Even this little lad of six seems to appreciate the trend to supplant the written word with pictures.

A news item says the railroads are equipping their locomotives with four-toned whistles, but we refuse to worry. It's a cinch that they can not wake us up any more thoroughly than that one sounded on the eastbound passenger nightly along about midnight.

Henry Ford adds cheer to the glad holiday season with the assurance that, in his opinion, "money is not scarce today, nor will it be so next year." That relieves us of our fear that Henry might come around and strike us for a loan.

Property valued at $21,671,755 was destroyed by fire in New York City in 1926. A loss like that hardly indicates that conservation of property has arrived at the ideal it should attain.

There are times when we are inclined to wonder if Ambassador Herrick really gave Lindbergh as many pointers on how to conduct himself that time the latter took a notion to fly over to Paris as was intimated at the time, and the present is one of them.

A Cornell university professor says that a guinea pig, which he caused to become intoxicated six times a week, lived to attain a ripe old age. If this is intended as a bit of wet propaganda, the question naturally obtrudes: Who wants to prove himself a guinea pig?

The legislators of Oklahoma admit that they impeached the state supreme judge out there who rendered the opinion that the members of the house were in illegal session without a word of evidence having been offered against him. When those who make the laws thus override them, what hope can there be for observance of the law by the general run of humanity? Assumption of powers they do not possess is becoming entirely too common on the part of legislative bodies.

Ho, a park bench! Who comes here?
Why has he a stick?
Do not strike me! Take me off—
I am tired and sick!

Shell of soul—a floating husk.
Listen to the bell
Ringing "Christ is born on earth"
Put me in a cell!

Put me there behind the bars—
Derelict I be!
Ringing—ringing, without pause—
Does it mean for me?

"Christ was born on earth—on earth"—
That's its one refrain!
Wise men worshiped where He slept,
In a manger lain.

Let me down upon my knees,
Humbly there to say:
Christ was born for such as I—
Born on Christmas day!

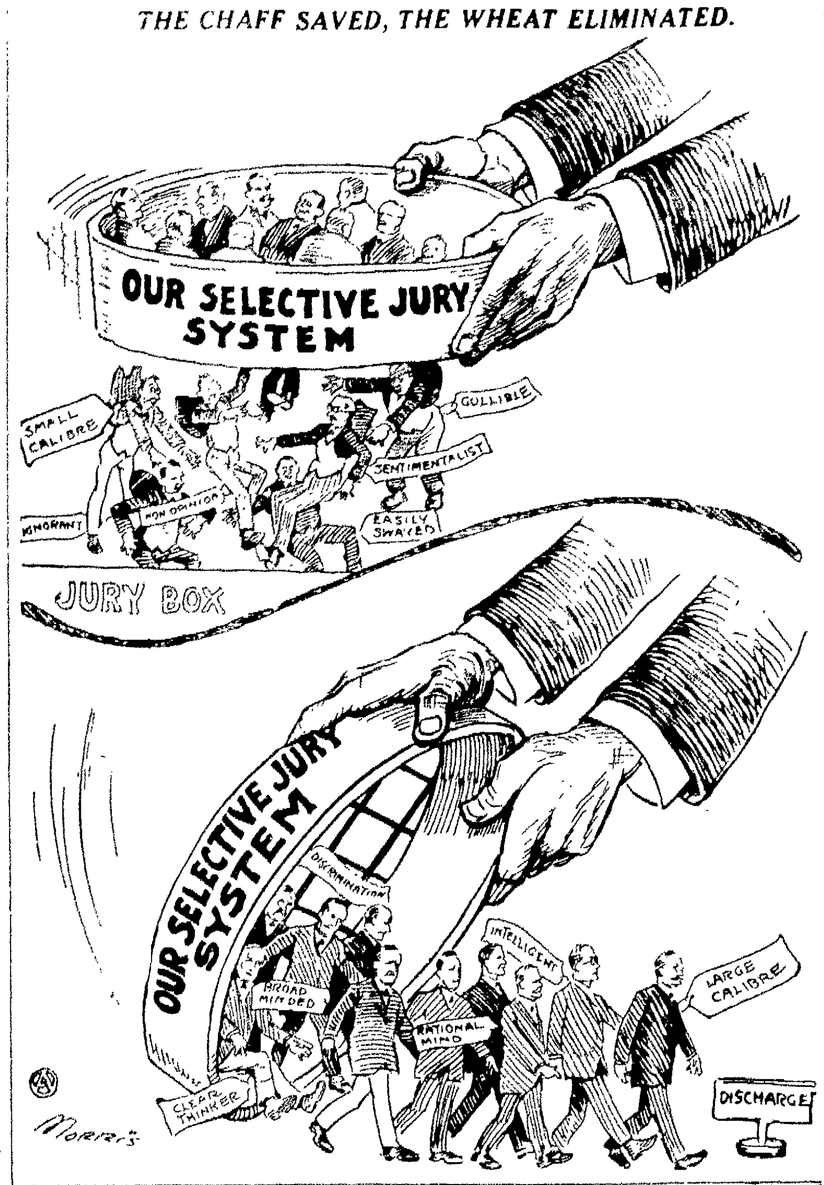
THE CHAFF SAVED, THE WHEAT ELIMINATED.



Get Out of Doors.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

My friend, the housewife, won't take it amiss if I give her a few suggestions about health and its preservation. We can't get along without her. Her strength and vigor are essential to the domestic happiness.

The "house-husband," if I may so name him, is less essential to the welfare of the household. Of course, he is the bread winner and we cannot afford to have him sick for long. However, a day now and then does not stop the machinery of the home. But we just can't get along without the housewife.

I fear I have said so much she will think our interest is purely selfish. But it isn't. We know she is unhappy and worried and mentally miserable if she cannot be on the job.

I shall never forget the anxiety of my own mother. When she was on her death bed her mind ran constantly to the household and its supervision. She modestly suspected, as we all sincerely believed, that the house couldn't be run without her.

So if I make a suggestion about health, it is for the happiness of the housewife as well as for our own benefit.

What I want to say is this: Please get out of doors every day. Don't use the telephone if you can possibly find the time to walk to the store.

To begin with, you will be better pleased with your purchases if you personally select them. The materials will be better and the prices will be less.

But of course these are not the reasons I want you to go to the store every day. It is because you need the air, the sun, the out-of-door exercise, the change of scene.

The indoor life of the average housewife does not give the proper sort of exercise. Now I know you will protest.

"Why, I am on my feet all the time. I walk miles every day," you say.

I know it, but somehow or other that kind of exercise is no substitute for walking out-of-doors. The muscles are on ball-bearings, so to speak. Your home movements are so automatic, so regular and monotonous, that they do not set the heart to pounding and the sweat glands to acting.

Good, smart, out-of-door walking will do far more for you than the same time spent on your feet in your own home. The invigorating coolness of the out-of-door air stimulates the skin, calls the blood to the surface and sets the heart to thumping.

Don't tire yourself out by too long a walk, but a reasonable amount every day will do wonders for the housewife. The change of environment and the interchange of ideas with the neighbors you meet on your outing will help to clear the cobwebs from the brain.

To live in one or two rooms day after day, year in and year out, is debilitating and discouraging. Don't do it. Get out among your friends and add years of happy life to your expectation.

Editorial Comment.

FORGERY, OR THEFT?

There are but two tenable hypotheses about the documents alleged to have been stolen from the files of the Mexican government which a committee of the United States senate is now investigating.

The first is that they are forgeries, fabricated for the purpose of fomenting trouble between the United States and Mexico and for the enrichment of those who executed and sold them.

The second is that they are genuine, but that the transactions with which they purport to deal were conducted for the purpose of transferring money from the Mexican treasury to the private account of Mexican officials for personal uses.

In either case it is an outrage that the names of four United States senators should have been dragged in as the beneficiaries of a huge Mexican slush fund, and that a reputable American lawyer should be named as the intermediary for the distribution of the bribes.

The four senators and the lawyer have categorically denied any knowledge, direct or indirect, of the matters dealt with in the documents, and have united in demanding the most searching inquiry. But their denial was superfluous. There is no service which four senators could perform for the Mexican government—even if there were four traitors in the senate—which would be worth to Mexico one-tenth of the sum alleged to have been transmitted to this country for their use. With untold wealth at its disposal the government of Mexico could not be guilty of an act of such unexampled profligacy and incredible folly.

The senate committee is now engaged in efforts to test the authenticity of the documents. It has no further concern with the honor of the senators to whom such grave injustice has been done, since even by those who instigated the investigation they have been completely vindicated.

The only problem which calls for solution is whether the supposed revelations of Mexican intrigue were procured from forgers or from thieves.—Philadelphia Record.

THE SOCIAL REGISTER.

The Social Register association has discontinued the publication of volumes for eleven cities on the ground that in these places there was "a lack of interest in being listed," which, translated into plain English, appears to mean a lack of interest in buying the books. Why? Because, one suspects, society in this country has virtually ceased to exist. We probably do not realize what an artificial thing it was, anyway. Since Ward McAllister proclaimed the Four Hundred we have more or less taken it for granted, but the truth is that there never was any Four Hundred, and the notion that there was a well-defined group to which some belonged and others did not belong has always been more or less a fiction.

Perhaps it was not an utter fiction up to the end of the soup and fish era. But of late years, since the dinner coat has replaced its pretentious predecessor, since a nine-course dinner has come to be regarded as a monstrosity, since all formality has tended to give way to an easy informality, the old idea of an aristocratic society has been abandoned, too. Furthermore, the number of persons obviously qualified to pass in any society has greatly increased—so much so that nobody can pretend to know them all or persuade himself that his particular group is the one and only genuine group. Thus society automatically passes, for the mark of society is exclusiveness, and if it is no longer excusive it is no longer society. It may exist in social registers, blue-books, or fashion magazines, but nobody with any sense really believes it.—New York World.

Miss Bessie B. Drake and Mr. Samuel Kern were married by Rev. D. H. Bailey.

Rev. Joseph Clark, general superintendent of the Ohio State Sunday-School league spoke at Epworth M. E. church.

Timothy J. Greaney, fifty-eight, died at his home on north Prospect street.

Word was received of the birth of a son to Rev. and Mrs. L. C. Langley at Davidson, Michigan, the preceding day.

Miss Clara Feimuth and Mr. Clarence Bauer were married at the home of the bride's mother in Scott Town by Rev. George Wahl.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Had you thought about growing wood for profit? There are plenty of folks in the United States, says Harper Leech, writing in the Chicago Tribune, where timber growing will yield a better profit than bonds.

"Yellow poplar grows faster than interest on money," says a southerner who knows the timber business.

To grow trees is not only a duty we owe to the coming generation. It is good business.

Ralph Busbey, editor of a trade journal, knows a lot about both journalism and advertising. He pays high tribute to newspapers. In a speech a few days ago he said:

"The great daily newspapers are rendering the country a tremendous service in effectively elevating the standards of retail advertising through curbing of fraudulent advertising copy.

"Moulders of public opinion, stimulators of business and leaders in civic progress, the daily newspapers of America are exerting a potent force for good in retail advertising and are lifting to new planes of honor and integrity the merchandising business of the nation."

If you were told that next year the United States may see such prosperity in business that 1926 and 1927 will appear like "hard times and depression" you would think you were listening to mere optimistic balderdash. But this prediction is made by no less a person than Virgil Jordan, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference board. It is encouraging when students of business find Uncle Sam on the verge of stepping out for new records in general business prosperity.

A Maryland university student, in a scientific effort to test the effect of smoking on the body, smoked thirty cigars in eight hours. At the thirtieth cigar he was made ill and had to quit. During the test his pulse went from eighty to 108. His respiration went from seventeen to thirty. His blood pressure was much increased and he became feverish, restless, and irritable.

No such drastic test was necessary to prove tobacco is not good for the human body. On the other hand the harm done by moderate use of tobacco is little enough compared to the harm of over-eating, over-drinking, over-laziness, and over-exercise. Moderation is a great principle which few practice.

As for smoking, we are called upon to make up our minds whether the comfort of the habit is worth the price of whatever bodily harm is suffered. It is not a moral issue or a question for professional reformers. It is just a matter of making up your mind whether you want to pay the price of the habit.

It is a personal matter like a lot of other things which stupid legislators would like to cover with a new law.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Dec. 22 — There is a great number of beautiful and talented ladies in New York who make handsome livings serving in what is known in the trade as "buyer baiters." It is their job to be constant call to help entertain visiting buyers.

They are ever ready dinner, theater and supper club companions who exchange engaging personalities and subtle flatteries for price. While they may permit a little hand holding or a fleeting kiss in a taxi—that is all. Their task is to aid in swinging a sale.

Many mercantile establishments frown on this procedure, but it flourishes nevertheless. Entertaining for business advantage has become such a factor in the race for profits that in many quarters it is looked upon as essential.

The "buyer baiter" is installed in a fine apartment. She is supplied with the ingredients for excellent cocktails as well as the choice liquors. She has a choice list of "party girls" who will add the zest of their presence for ten or twenty dollars a evening.

The buyer who comes to New York and has his evenings so pleasantly cast in the midst of bright and pretty girls is almost bound to be influenced toward his host. The business equation is unavoidable. And the salesman who lands the order can easily bear expense from his commissions.

While some of these women are on the pay roll of the mercantile establishments, the majority are paid by salesmen. There are a few tarnished titles and passe society folk who pick up extra money helping to amuse the visiting buyers.

Masters of ceremony in night clubs are added to their incomes by announcing, "We have with us tonight Mr. Joe Doakes, the prince of good fellows of Little Creek, Iowa." Mr. Doakes, inflated by such flattery, does not forget his thoughtful host when he makes his purchases.

Texas Guinan, who won the sobriquet of "Queen of the Night Clubs," lives on a quiet street on the upper fringe of Greenwich village. She first rented a lower floor of an old home, but finally took over the entire house which has thirty-six rooms. Her mother, father and brother live with her. The house is furnished in baroque style. There are rooms with divans piled high with cushions and filled with all sorts of grotesque bric-a-brac, Chinese vases and a touch of decoration suggestive of early Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. There are numerous parrots and other chattering birds of bright plumage and a sprinkling of Pekingese and Pomeranian dogs and Persian cats. The mistress of the house rarely arrives until after the sun is in splendor. After her night club work, she usually gallops around the bridle paths of Central park to get away from the smoke and other fumes. She was once billed in the movies as "The Female Bill Hart." She has six uncles who are Catholic priests. The night queen has presided over four clubs that have been padlocked and is now in charge of the fifth—which at this writing—is in a legal fight over a proper license.

Strange Wedding Custom.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Cavemen are said to be as extinct as the old dodo. But a report of the wedding ceremony as conducted in Central Asia reveals encouragement to those who would be interested in a revival of the good old stone-age method of female pursuit.

If the slogan of the Northwest Mounted police is "Get-your-man"—the Kirghiz men of the black tents make their by-word, "Get-your-woman." Fortunately for the bride, the custom has now come to be executed with a dummy. But in ancient times it was the bride who accepted a courting that was more like a free-for-all fight.

In the spring where the young man's fancy turns is too well known to mention. And, the Kirghiz men of Central Asia are affected in the same way only in that line, "lightly turns thoughts of love," it is necessary to substitute "violently" for "lightly."

The etiquette of a Kirghiz wedding in order of its proper continuity is as follows:

A dummy bride is placed on a certain spot, two teams of horsemen, seven to a team, contest for its possession. The bridegroom leads one force of horses, while the bride's party valiantly defends the dummy bride.

One of the bride's defenders lifts the dummy from the ground and gallops away, while the warring groom pursues, leaps from his horse and on to that of the defender, who bears the bride "done in effigy."

While the groom concentrates on trying to throw the defender from his saddle, another defender snatches the dummy bride. This performance is repeated several times. Meanwhile the dummy begins to look more like a rag-bag than an enticing bride.

There is a point to this game, the chief object of the attackers being to take the dummy through a ring or rope. But, very often, no one manages to do this, and eventually there is nothing left of the dummy to take through the ring if anyone could.

At this juncture the bridegroom gallops off to the dais where his real bride awaits him, lifts her to his shoulders and carries her to the people.—Copyright, 1927.

MOST PROBLEMS OF RAILS FROM OUTSIDE

Lehigh Valley Co. Head Wants Roads To Concentrate on Service

New York, Dec. 22—The problems of the railroads—if any, are not self-imposed, but consist for the most part of conditions which those outside the railroad ranks are seeking to impose on them.

This is the philosophy of E. E. Loomis, the president of Lehigh Valley Railroad Co., who told International News Service today that if the railroads are permitted to proceed along present lines, concentrating their whole effort upon the effectiveness of their service to the public, there is nothing in the situation to be faced in 1928, calculated to give the slightest concern to those interested in, and dependent upon, good transportation.

Explain Their Plan

"I think the time has come," said Loomis, "when those who seek to solve the 'railroad problem' should first be compelled to explain what problem they have in mind. With the carriers giving the best service in their history, and the great bulk of the shipping and traveling public plainly manifesting general satisfaction, it is difficult to understand all the talk on the subject of a railroad problem. If there has been one in the past, it undoubtedly has been answered satisfactorily by the men who have made the service what it is today."

Loomis believes that the rates charged by the American railroads have no relation whatever to the so-called farmers' problem.

"In my opinion," he said, "even if the railroads should carry agricultural products for nothing, after a short while, what was previously paid for transportation would be completely absorbed, through the middleman between the farmer and the consumer, and thus the farmer would find himself no better off than he is today.

Says No Fair Return

"On the other hand, at no time since the passage of the transportation act in 1920 have the railroads earned a fair return upon the book values of their properties. Their best showing was in 1926, when they earned 5.13 per cent, but they were $83,000,000 behind this record in the first nine months of 1927, and it seems certain their final return for the year cannot exceed 4.75 per cent."

In the seven years since the end of government control, Loomis estimates that American railroads have failed by two and a half million dollars to earn the fair return the transportation act provided for. Had they really had the guaranty some have mistakenly contended the law gave them, said Loomis, this staggering sum would now be due the railroads. The railroads are paying the government in taxes alone, more than a million dollars a day, considerably more than they pay in dividends to their stockholders.

Confident Position

A confident position on railroad prospects is also taken by Carl R. Gray, the president of the Union Pacific Railroad system. This is due in large measure to the favorable crop yields in the territory served by this road, and the large volume of railroad traffic created by abundant harvests.

"Obviously," said Gray, in reviewing the railroad situation today, "one's viewpoint about business prospects is influenced by the conditions surrounding his own business in the territory with which he is familiar. With western railroads, which depend to so large an extent upon products of agriculture, the results of the harvests are fundamental.

"This year we have a record crop of both wheat and corn in Nebraska, a very good corn crop in Kansas, better than a normal crop of all kinds in Colorado, Utah and Idaho. Washington and Oregon have a materially less apple crop, but the wheat production is considerably less than last year. A most unfavorable situation surrounds the lumber industry in the northwest, which is lagging, and regarding which it is difficult to estimate the immediate future."

Gray looks for a larger volume of general business in California in the first half of 1928 than in the same period this year. The livestock industry there, he says, is in better position than at any time since 1919, bank deposits are higher and credits readily available.

The Story of a Girl Who Tried To Cheat Love

BY GILBERT ROGERS

CHAPTER 24

THE dinner table again—the dinner table with its soft candle-light, its delicate English china, its antique silver service.

And Carlotta sitting quiet, biting her lip, thinking hidden thoughts. Sally, quiet, too, wondering. But Dan Sherlin talked for both, a constant stream of dry crackling phrases that would have been funny if they had not also been cruel.

Sally had never seen him so gay, in such high spirits. But there was something nervous in him, as if he, too, were planning . . .

It had been a long day. Sally was tired. Besides they did not want her around. She murmured something about going up to bed and reading.

Half-way up the stairs, she halted and came back for a book. Sherlin was over at the writing-desk, opening a drawer. Mrs. Brooke was watching him speechlessly. He took something from the drawer.

Sally gave a little start. He had taken out a black automatic revolver, and was filling the clip with cartridges. She backed away, stole noiselessly up the stairs again. A low murmur of words floated mysteriously to her ears.

"Dan . . . don't. I'm afraid. Adrian Martin—won't stand for anything. I tell you I know what he's like. . . ."

A heavy laugh was followed by something muttered, something that had a boastful ring. Then the slam of the front door, and a deathly silence.

Sally stood in the center of her room, and moving. Scraps of phrases, little, unexplained incidents, things seen and heard and felt—they all came crowding into her mind now.

Dan Sherlin loading an automatic—Carlotta's terror—this mention again of Adrian Martin—what did it all mean?

Suddenly, so clearly and vividly that she wondered she had not guessed before, Sally read the riddle.

Her mind darted back. In a flash she saw everything—everything! Why it was that Sherlin had been eager to learn that Tubby Wells was already married against his mother's wishes. Why he had been so eager to hear the details of Adrian Martin's secret. Secrets—they were his business—the secrets of persons well connected, rich, influential. Blackmail!

Sally walked nervously up and down. She had no proof, no real proof, and yet she wanted none. A hundred little things pointed it out. Tubby Wells' changed attitude towards her—she understood now. He believed her only an accomplice of Sherlin's, ferreting out secrets through her personal charms, and betraying confidences. An accomplice—she had been one without knowing it. No wonder Sherlin had been cheerful tonight when she had told him about Adrian Martin, she saw now why he hadn't pressed her to continue her intimacy with Martin, why he had loaded the automatic.

She was trembling. She couldn't keep still. What was she to do? Tell Sherlin, of course, tell him she knew. And Mrs. Brooke—Mrs. Brooke who was really an accomplice—what about her?

Sally marched from the room on an impulse, hurried down stairs. Carlotta was sitting at the window, not moving.

"Oh, I thought you'd gone to bed."

A flat, monotonous voice, the voice of someone undergoing a strain.

"I meant to—but I . . . I want to talk to you."

"About what?"

"I've just found out," said Sally simply, "found out what's been happening."

"What do you mean?" Mrs. Brooke's glance was quick and a little afraid.

"Oh—about Dan Sherlin—I've found out he—he Blackmails people."

A long pause, then an intake of breath. "My dear child, what on earth are you talking about? Have you been reading too many detective stories?"

"Please. Please don't treat me like a fool. I—I really know."

Mrs. Brooke searched her face, met her eyes, and her own face was heavy and tired. With a little gesture she seemed to admit everything.

"Well . . . you had to know . . . sooner or later."

"But you—"

"Oh, I'm with him, too, all the way!" She spoke almost defiantly. "Since you want to know everything, I may as well tell you."

"But I don't understand—I don't see how you—"

Mrs. Brooke put up her hand. "Don't! Don't talk to me like that," she said tremulously. "It isn't my fault. I told him some things I happened to know long ago. He used them. Then I found out, too. I tried to stop him, but he's bad, bad all the way through. Then you came along and you told him about Tubby Wells. He got a lot of money out of Wells—and has lost it already in speculation. He's a madman when it comes to gambling. He'll gamble on anything. And now it's Adrian Martin, and I'm afraid. This can't go on forever. Sometimes I see people looking at me, and I wonder if they know. It's ghastly, ghastly! I keep smiling, but all the time I'm frightened. I'm frightened about what may happen. Now you know, now you know!"

Sally sank into a chair. It was a kind of degradation she was witnessing, she felt. Someone fine, with fine impulses, turned into an enemy of society. And turned through love—love that could make people good, and could make them bad, too.

She had a sudden, clear picture of the whole thing. Mrs. Brooke, well-connected, with a secure place in the social world, meeting a gambler on the Riviera, finding herself unable to resist him, losing her money to him, being drawn bit by bit into the shoddy practises by which he lived. It was pitiful.

But she couldn't say: "This can't go on. You've got to get away from him, or send him away." Not to anyone who was in love as Mrs. Brooke was in love. Mrs. Brooke who, no longer had any will of her own.

Then suddenly Mrs. Brooke began to sob. She got up unsteadily. Sally moved towards her.

"No. I'm going up to my room. I'd rather be alone—now. I'd rather be alone. I feel too miserable. But I'm glad I've told you—glad. You're a sweet little thing. I never thought Dan would use you, too—like this. I'm sorry—sorry. Oh, perhaps it doesn't matter. I try to tell myself it doesn't."

Sally was alone. She had found out, she had learned the truth, but what was she going to do now?

Tell Sherlin she wouldn't go on, of course. Tell him right away. When he came back tonight—if he came back. It had all been a mistake anyway. Only a man like Sherlin would have been willing to suggest the plan in the first place—seeing that a girl had clothes, introductions, everything, in order that she might marry a wealthy man. Why it was fantastic, crazy!

As for the money that had been spent, the tainted money wrung from unhappy, unwilling men and women, she would get that back to him some other way. She had paid him already, if the secrets she had given him were to be counted, but she would not pay with other people's misery.

She would tell him simply, and he would be afraid and be glad to let her go. As for Jerry—she'd write him in care of Mrs. Farrington, tell him everything, be honest about everything. If he cared—well, then it would be all right. And he must care, he must! . . .

She looked back, remembering New York, the office, the apartment with her four friends. "I'm a million years older!" she thought. "I think differently and want different things. But what I've seen and done! . . ."

The sound of a car outside, footsteps, and then Dan Sherlin stumbling into the room. Smiling grimly but with his face dead white, his hands shaking. He went over to the decanter, poured himself a drink, as if he needed it badly.

"That's better," he half whispered. He turned and saw Sally, sitting silent and watchful.

"Hello!" he exclaimed with an air of bravado. "It's the little duchess! Well, what are you looking at me like that for? Eh?"

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

It was cold today when I let Jubilee down. But it is almost always cold in winter.

The teacher asted me if we had forgot about the Christmas Tree, and I told her we hadn't, but my father had his Christmas grouch on which he gets on just before Christmas every year so that no one won't dast to ast him for any Christmas money. So she said to go home and ast my mother for it whilst he was away, and when she asted me how much help I needed I said everybody in the room. So she smiled and said to go ahead and get back as soon as possible, because there was never much work done this near to Christmas and we might as well be outside as in. We all jumped up and swarmed out hollering and yelling so loud that the teachers in the other rooms thought the school was on fire and put on the fire drill. When we seen them coming scooting down the shoot we knowed what was up and skun out as fast as we could go so we wouldn't be called back.

My mother said to take the horse by all means and she would have two dry eyes in her head if it fell down and broke its neck. So we hitched all of our slays together and tied the hatchet to mine. Me and Feeble and Younius rode the horse and the others rode the slays and we made them bang on the way we went. I invited Younius to ride on the horse and Feeble invited herself, and we went out on the Hogback with our dogs barking and us hollering and having a good time.

We found a good tree out of sight of any house and when we had got it out and tied to the whippletrees a man came walking up and stood looking at us. Then when we had all swunk up from being looked at so hard he asted us who said we might have the tree, and I said no one. I said I didn't know it belonged to anyone. Then he told us real ugly to have the horse pull it over to his house, so we did. Him going along. He took us all in the house and we thought he was going to lock us in his cellar, but he hollered to his wife and asted her if she had plenty of gingerbread, and we each got a glass of milk and a slab of gingerbread. And when we went away the man and his wife stood in the door and hollered "Merry Christmas!"

When I get big I am going to fool kids like that. That's fun. I asted Younius if she knowed how to make gingerbread, and Feeble butted in and said she did. School was out when we got there.

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

Jackson Is Interested

I WAS so astonished by young Mr. Jackson's excited queries as to Eleanor Lincoln's plans to become an actress under Philip Vertimon's direction, that I had no words with which to answer him. That he guessed the reason for my astonishment, I knew when he spoke again.

"Of course you think I am—what you call—crazy," he said, apparently treading through the mazes of English as he fancied it was spoken in America. As he spoke he turned a corner into a wood road and drew up the car under the shade of an immense tree.

"Now we can talk," he went on with an engaging smile "without danger of being killed. I really am too excited to drive and talk, too."

I silently agreed with him, for he patently was greatly excited. And when he released his hand from the wheel I saw that it was shaking.

"Of course you are wondering what business it is of mine what Miss Lincoln does," he said, and stopped, looking at me searchingly.

Some lurking spirit of mischief prompted my answer.

"Unless, perhaps you are engaged to the young woman," I said demurely. "That would account for your excitement upon the subject of her proposed theatrical career."

He gave me another intent look, and then laughed, but with a note of ruefulness in his mirth.

"I see that you are spoofing me," he said. "I surely would be—what do you say—a 'hurry-up worker'—to get engaged to Miss Lincoln in so short a time since I have met her. No, I assure I am not engaged to Miss Lincoln, nor have I now any desire to be."

Unconsciously he had emphasized the "now." I took fast hold of my courage and said softly:

"Not 'now,' perhaps, but—how long ago did you give up that desire? Days? Weeks? Months? Years, perhaps?"

He gave me a quick startled look, and then there was a long minute of silence. Then he raised his head with a decisive gesture.

"So—you know"—he said.

"That you and Miss Lincoln are not strangers, yes," I said.

"Has she told you?" he asked tensely. "How much do you know?"

For an instant I dallied with temptation. I saw clearly that in the young man's excitement I had only to pretend that Eleanor Lincoln had given me her confidence, and I would have the solution of the mystery surrounding her. But the decent instincts of birth and training rushed to my aid, and I spoke quickly, decisively.

"She has told me nothing," I said truthfully. "Nor do I 'know' anything. But it did not take very keen observation upon those two occasions of ours to see that you and she were old acquaintances that the dog Fedor belonged to her, and that for some reason you were taking care of it for her."

"Who else knows this?" he asked quickly, and I guessed that his thoughts had flown to Mary.

"As I told you, no one 'knows' anything," I answered, sparring for time. "And as for guesses upon the part of other people, you must question them. I can only tell you my own reaction to Miss Lincoln's behavior when she caught sight of you and Fedor that day at the station."

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting often fails?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, now sold by Heuney & Cooper and druggists everywhere, that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, quick and lasting relief to thousands of pile sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. There is no reason why it should not do the same for you.—Adv.

DECORATIONS CATCH FIRE IN STORE HERE

Blaze Caused by Short Circuit in Wires Used To Bind Evergreen

The prompt discovery of a blaze which had started in evergreen decorations, prevented a serious fire at the Blake Floral store on W. Center-st this morning.

The fire started from a short circuit in the wires which had been used to bind the pieces of evergreen together. It was discovered by employes who called the fire department. The blaze was put out with chemicals by firemen from the central and No. 2 stations, without loss.

The long strings of the evergreen had been wrapped around the chain of a ceiling light fixture and it is thought the wires which had been used in binding the material had come in contact with the fixture, creating a short circuit.

HORNSBY CLEARED

Diamond Star Freed of Gambling Debt Claims of Betting Commissioner

St. Louis, Dec. 22—Rogers Hornsby is free of all debt claims today, after a jury released him of a suit brought against him by Frank L. Moore, betting commissioner, for $36,275.

Moore refused to discuss the verdict. He originally filed suit against the diamond star for approximately $92,000 which he claimed he had wagered and lost for Hornsby on horse races, but demurrers by defense counsel sustained by the court reduced the final claim to the $36,275 figure.

BONUS LOSS FACED BY WORLD WAR VETS

Have Failed To File Applications; Only Eight Days Remain

Washington, Dec. 22—More than 650,000 World War veterans are facing the loss of their legal right to claim the soldiers' bonus, with the time limit for filing applications expiring on Jan. 1, 1928, and Congress in adjournment for the holidays until Jan. 4.

The forgetful veterans have two chances. They may file applications in the eight remaining days or depend on Congress to pass a new bill giving them more time.

Whether Congress will extend the time limit, after the veterans have had several years in which to obtain the adjusted compensation certificates of insurance is problematical.

Representative Green, Republican of Iowa, chairman of the House ways and means committee, declared today that it was still possible for legislative action after the holidays.

"I don't know whether I would favor extending the time or not—there already has been ample time," he said.

The ways and means committee rejected a plea by Representative Connery, Democrat of Massachusetts, to push through a time extension bill before the holiday adjournment.

Actually, according to records of the army, navy, and marine corps, there are today 671,517 veterans out of more than 4,000,000 men who served in the World War who have failed to seek the bonus. Applications are still being received by the war department at the rate of 1,900 a day.

The NEW HOOVER

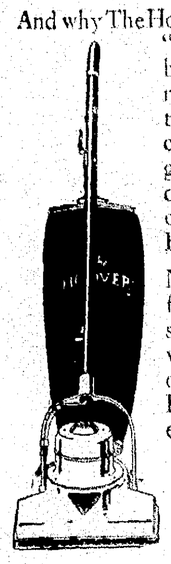
It BEATS as it sweeps as it Cleans

Can Christmas be really "Merrie" if MOTHER faces this?

Why let her Christmas be marred with the dread of another year of cleaning? Why let her give so heavy a toll of her strength and rest?

A New Hoover will brighten her Christmas as no other gift you could name.

And why The Hoover, instead of an ordinary "vacuum cleaner?" Simply because Positive Agitation makes The New Hoover more than twice as efficient! Because of it, The New Hoover gets more than twice as much dirt from a rug, in the ordinary cleaning time, as even former Hoovers!



May we prove it to you? A few moments at our Demonstration Booth will show you why rug experts the world over unite in calling The New Hoover the greatest advance ever made in rug cleaning.

QUESTION POWERS OF STUDENT SENATE

Government Group at Ohio State University Common Topic on Campus

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, Dec. 22—A doubt concerning the powers of the Student Senate as the governing body of student affairs is causing considerable discussion among students enrolled at Ohio State University.

Believing the Senate, composed of representative men of the campus, had the entire control of student activities, members of the organization recently found themselves unable to change a rule passed by a faculty committee which provided for the closing of all student affairs at midnight, one hour earlier than under the former rule.

The new rule, which has been finding a great deal of disfavor among the students, was overruled as unlawful by the controlling body, but their effort to change the ruling was blocked by university officials.

That the "Student Senate shall control all student affairs," according to a strict interpretation of the rule permitted the body by the university, is the stand being taken by Senate in trying to revise the midnight decision. The conflict with the faculty lies in the ruling of the Council of Student Affairs, composed of faculty members, which is charged with the supervision of student social life and curricular activities.

Following the unsuccessful attempts of the Senate and other campus organizations in influencing a change in the new ruling, all Ohio State Student activities will close at midnight, starting with the winter term, January 4.

Epworth Church Cottage Prayer Meetings will be held at the following places: Friday evening, Mrs. J. E. Harden, 540 Blaine Ave.; Friday evening, Mrs. E. A. Solomon, 380 Mary St.; Thursday evening, Rex Robinson, 346 Summit St.; Friday evening, Mrs. Jane Rexroth, 784 E. Center St.—Adv.

BEGIN SENDING FOOD TO NEEDY OHIO MINERS

Glouster, Dec. 22—Every charitable organization in the Hocking Valley today had begun distributing baskets of food for Christmas in the homes of needy coal miners, many of whom have been without employment since the present coal strike began last April. It is expected that about 500 families will be thus helped. In some places, serving of soup dinners started yesterday.

DOUBTS STORY

School Girl Says She Was Drugged and Held Captive

Pittsburgh, Dec. 22—Some doubt was raised today regarding the story told by Ella Eicher, 18-year-old McKeesport High School girl, that she had been kidnaped, drugged, and held prisoner in an Ohio city.

Stella Baker of Connellsville, lifelong friend of the Eicher girl, told authorities she had seen her missing friend last Monday in Cleveland and that when she had denied her identity, had threatened to tell her father.

Mathew Eicher, the girl's uncle, and with whom she had been living, told authorities she still was in a serious mental condition, and he had no reason to believe she had "faked" her kidnaping story.

HOLIDAY GARB WRAPS CITY

Galion Dressed Out in Real Christmas Attire

Galion, Dec. 22—Galion's holiday garb is now complete and a gorgeous Yuletide atmosphere pervaded the downtown district last night as the community Christmas tree on the public square were lighted for the first time. Four tall towers decorated with gaily colored lights form the central part of the attractive setting and a uniform scheme of decoration used by city merchants adds the final touch to the picture. Smaller trees lavishly hung with bright lights and ornaments are before every shop and several impersonators of St. Nicholas have made their appearance to the delight of the children.

The entire project was the suggestion of the local Kiwanis club and the trees were their gift to the city. Committees from the Better Galion club and city officials worked in co-operation with the originators of the scheme.

Groups Working

As the Dec. 25th approaches many charity groups are hard at work preparing a real day of enjoyment for the poor of Galion. Among the important events scheduled is the affair which is being sponsored by the Salvation Army and at which every one of the less fortunate children of the city will be given gifts of toys and clothing and a supervised party of games and an enjoyable program.

According to plans of the musical groups, Christmas carols will be heard in every part of the city. Some organizations will sing on the eve of the celebrated day and others have chosen the early morning hours. The choir and Christian Endeavor members of the First Reformed Church will observe their annual custom of singing for "shut in" members of their congregation and a number of other church choirs are making similar plans.

Two high school groups will spread Christmas cheer by caroling, the Glee clubs beginning their singing tour at midnight and the Girl Reserves starting out at dawn. A youthful band of carolers from the fifth and sixth grades of the public schools under the supervision of Mrs. Gordon Meuser, music director, will also do their part toward making the season an especially cheerful one.

KENTON REDS TO PLAY HARD CARD

Cage Club Has Tough Holiday Schedule Assigned

Kenton, Dec. 22—Two home games and three on foreign courts are included in the elaborate holiday schedule, of the Kenton Reds, according to Manager Bert McFarland.

In their games at home, the Reds are to oppose the World Famous Indians, featuring Jim Thorpe, prominent Indian athlete, on Dec. 24, and the Ohio Northern University squad, Thursday Dec. 29.

The tilts of the out-of-town games will be played in Columbus, Dec. 22 against the Robert Lees, former Kenners, as a Charity Newsie benefit. On Monday, Dec. 26 they will play the Sidney Merchants in that city, and on Dec. 28, Mt. Vernon, there.

To date the Reds have won all games played and Manager McFarland is confident that his crack club will complete its strenuous holiday schedule with its record unmarred by a defeat. Probable the hardest tilt will be that against the Robert Lees.

MR. AND MRS. RILEY PLAN CHRISTMAS GATHERING

PETE REILLY GIVES UP JACK DELANEY

Fistic Manager Takes Record Price of $50,000 for Contract

New York, Dec. 22—Some five or six years ago, Pete Reilly, who formerly hoisted them around at short for various minor league clubs purchased the contract of a young Connecticut middleweight for $900.

The young man made $300,000 for himself and Reilly, who steered him into the light heavyweight championship. Now Reilly has sold his contract for $50,000—a record price in the cauliflower ear market.

And so Jack Delaney passed under the management of Joe Jacobs, a shrewd manipulator of Queensberryware. Reilly leaves him at the height of his career—an undefeated champion in the light-heavyweight division and a contender for the heavyweight crown. Reilly also transferred to Jacobs his contract with Sammy Vogel, a welterweight.

Jake Schaefer Carries On With Family Traditions In Taking 18.2 Balkline Crown

Even Air Has Snap of Rivalry as Welker Cochran Goes Down in Defeat and Willie Hoppe Merely Looks On

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—Many years ago when Willie Hoppe was just learning that a billiard cue is more than a handy implement to throw at the neighbor's cat, the name of Jacob Schaefer was one to conjure with in the billiard world. In 1921 and 1925 Schaefer's wizardry was perpetuated when his son won the 18.2 balkline billiard championship of the world, and the cycle was completed last night when Young Jake regained the championship from Welker Cochran.

That seems to make the title more or less of a family heirloom. Young Jake, who was making fancy shots at an age when most infants are learning how to manipulate a knife and fork instead of a billiard cue, should have little difficulty in retaining the crown if he does not lose the form he showed in the match just concluded.

Hoppe in Gallery

Hoppe, whose long reign was ended by Schaefer in 1921, was an interested spectator at the festivities last night. He saw Jake win by the comfortable margin of 1,500 to 1,304, although Cochran outscored the challenger 551 to 300 in the final block.

During the preceding blocks Schaefer apparently had a mental edge on Cochran. Before the match started Jake informed the champion in stiff confidence that he, Jake, could stake the title-holder to a healthy handicap and win under raps. The only comeback Cochran could think of at the time was a forced smile, and his ensuing nervousness during the match did him no good at all.

Cochran Gets Good

In the final block, however, Cochran shed his inferiority complex and threw a large scare into Schaefer by making a high run of 191. During this belated rally, it was Schaefer's turn to sit down and endeavor to appear highly unconcerned.

The thinly-veiled hostility between the two cue artists lent the match a spicy atmosphere not usually found at a billiard match. Jake and Welker have not been on speaking terms for some time, but the ice was broken when Jake forgot himself and remarked "tough luck!" as the champion missed a shot.

Schaefer's grand average during the match was 31 3-43. Cochran's was 31 2-42.

Cochran's grand rally came too late to save his title. At one stage he was trailing by a score of 1,242 to 753.

Billy Southworth Once Played With Kenton Reds

Kenton, Dec. 20 — William H. "Billy" Southworth, who has been a member of the St. Louis Cardinals' team for two years and who has just signed a three-year contract to manage the Syracuse International League club, first broke into big league play while a member of the old Kenton Reds club.

It was while he was playing with the Chenoweth nine in Columbus that he, "Red" Eriley and Grover Rhoades, were signed by the Reds of Kenton as catcher, pitcher and shortstop, respectively, at $5 per game and expenses.

While the three local players were with the locals, an exhibition game was scheduled with the Lima team of the Ohio State League. The result of the game ended 9-8 in Kenton's favor.

Billy, as usual, had a good day with several extra base bingles, and so impressed was Eddie Donalds, the opposing hurler, that he obtained for Billy a tryout with the Portsmouth Ohio State league team.

Billy broke in with Portsmouth in 1912 and at the end of the season he technically became the property of the Columbus AA ball club in a "cover-up" draft. Later he was sold as an outfielder for $300 to the Cleveland American league club.

He then saw service with the Cleveland and Toledo Clubs in AA competition before spending two seasons each with Portland Pacific Coast League and Birmingham Southern league clubs.

The year of 1918 saw Billy start a 10-year stretch in the majors, first with Pittsburgh, then Boston Braves for three years. In November, 1923, he was traded to the New York Giants, and on June 14, 1926 he was traded to the Cardinals.

GRID SCOUTING IS TIME SAVER, SAY HARVARD OFFICIALS

Crimson Drops All Non-Scouting Agreements Made with Other Schools

Football scouting is a system to save time and not a system that seeks to evade the law and thereby merit the title of spying, the Harvard University Athletic authorities maintain in a recent article in the H. A. A. News, official organ of the Harvard Athletic Association. Harvard has dropped all non-scouting agreements with her future gridiron opponents.

The article in the News represents the sentiment of the majority of Harvard men, according to William J. Bingham, athletic director at the university.

Another reason why Harvard has broken off non-scouting agreements is that they have aroused suspicion among the alumni and students of colleges that are on the Crimson schedules, says the News.

Graduates of Yale, Pennsylvania and Vermont were heard to remark just before the games between these colleges that Harvard men had scouted their elevens, though without the knowledge of the Harvard autorities. Although it was proved to them that the Harvard coaches and players whom they named were not at those places at the time mentioned, this general suspicious atmosphere was not beneficial to collgiate amateur sport, in the opinion of the Harvard News.

MUST FIGHT IZZY

New Yorker Next Opponent For Belanger, Association Says

New London, Conn., Dec. 22—Frenchy Belanger, recognized by the National Boxing Association as the new flyweight champion, must fight Frankie Genaro of New York before meeting Corporal Izzy Schwartz for the undisputed right to the title. This ruling was given by Thomas E. Donohue, president of the N. B. A. Schwartz is recognized as champion by the New York Boxing Commission.

Since the laws in most states have put an end to the use of live pigeons as targets it takes something like 90,000,000 clay birds a year to meet the demands of the trapshooting tournaments held throughout the United States and Canada.

Industrial Stocks Throw Off Influence of Tighte

STEEL, COPPER LEAD ADVANCE

Well-Known Speculative Favorites Show Greater Strength on Exchange

Markets at a Glance

Railroad stocks, strong; industrial stocks, strong; domestic bonds firm; foreign bonds, firm; call money 4 1-2 per cent, grain, steady; Copper, steady, oil, firm, cotton, steady; rubber steady, sugar, steady, pig iron, firm, foreign exchange, irregular.

New York, Dec. 22—Industrial stocks threw off the influence of the tighter money rate and the 6 per cent call loan rate and, under the lead of the steel and copper shares, forged ahead to higher price levels. The rise of United States Steel to above 140 was the outstanding news of the day, though strength in American Can, American Smelting and other well known speculative favorites copied favorable comment on the finance bill.

Buying of steel stocks accompanied the reports of a heavy accumulation of new orders for steel products at the principal manufacturing centers. Unfilled orders in United States Steel Corporation were reported actively in the market for a large block of the stock, and this strongly suggested the necessity of short covering in this and other stocks. Copper's advance to above 92 was the feature of the independent steels, though Bethlehem and steel foundries were well bought.

Year-end surveys and "forecasts" were given a large place in the business discussions of the day. Results for the current year in representative industries and corporations are well known, and formal presentation of annual reports will do little more than confirm what is already known. Stabilization of the Italian paper lira at 19 to the American dollar is now an assured fact, and the Morgan banking house confirmed the fact that it had loaned $25,000,000 in New York and 3,000,000 pounds in London to the Italian government. It also has agreed to purchase $20,000,000 of commercial bills.

TODAY'S REVIEW

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 22—Short covering and commission house buying on resting orders relieved the pressure in the wheat pit yesterday and the market firmed. Opening prices were a little lower and the market eased off quickly on general selling induced by disappointing cables. However, the rally later in the session brought prices up near the previous close and net losses were only ¼@¼c, with December at $1.26⅞ and May $1.30½.

Liverpool was due ¼d lower to ¼d higher, but opened unchanged and dropped off to finish ⅝@⅝d easier. Their weakness resulted in scattered selling in the local market, which established the early low. Buenos Aires was unchanged to ½c higher at mid session while Winnipeg opened ¼c lower and closed ⅛@¼c higher, closely following the action of the local market.

The day's run of news lacked sufficient character to instigate action of any kind. As a consequence, trade was listless and continued light in volume. Holiday dullness prevailed in the export trade, and no figures on business transacted were reported.

No market action in anticipation of the government report on Winter wheat acreage was noticeable. The estimate, released after the close of the market, was bearish, as the trade expected.

A total of 17,897,000 acres of wheat were sown this Fall, the report shows, as compared with 43,465,000 acres a year ago, or an increase of 10.2 per cent. The condition is rated at 86, compared with 81.8 a year ago. The government's weekly weather crop report indicates some damage to the crop from unseasonable weather.

Corn Lower Early

Corn eased off a little more than 1c in the early trade, but encountered good commision house buying on resting orders when May was around 90 1-4c. Later when some of the shorts covered, offerings had lightened considerably. Cash demand was good and country offerings to arrive were practically not most of the day's book ings of 38,000 bu being from the Southwest markets.

Oats had a firm undertone, although influenced in the day's trade by the early weakness in the other grains. December was bought by cash houses and commission houses absorbed the distant futures. Longs were responsible for most of the selling. Trade was light. Cash demand was not so heavy, but local sales totaled 50,000 bu and country offerings were light. Deliveries, 63,000 bu.

Rye followed wheat. May was the strongest. Seaboard reported nothing new in export business. The government report showed a total of 3,802,000 acres sown to Winter rye, compared with 3,670,000 acres a year ago, an increase of 3.6 per cent. Condition was 89.3, against 86.3 in 1926.

WAR IS FOOL'S GAME; NOW IS MERELY HORROR

London, Dec. 22.—"War is a fool's game. It was all right 50 years ago, when it was fought in a more or less just and sportsman-like manner. With the thousand and one mechanical barbarities attached to it today, it is merely a horror."

Field Marshal Sir William Robertson recently made the above statement.

"If matters are properly handled by people responsible for them," added Sir William, "war is more remote than it has been for a long time. That is because people simply hate war. But before we can say that war is abolished the world must be rid of the Soviet Russia menace.

"Despotic monarchs are all right, and so are national armies, but with a combination of the two we have a very dangerous thing indeed.

"Everyone should support efforts to evolve sensible and humane ways of composing international differences. Defense of the Empire could be made far easier and cheaper."

The new style of bobbed hair in London has brought the new "Marcilla" comb into high favor. It is placed just above the curls, which are creeping lower and lower on the neck, and stands out from the front in a fan-like curve.

SUNSHINE TOUR NEW IDEA OF EUROPEANS

Three-Engine Planes To Carry Romance-Seekers to Many Cities

London, Dec. 22.—The latest innovation in European aviation is the "sunshine tour."

As swiftly as did Aladdin's "magic rug" carry him to the castle of the fairy princess, will giant, three-engined air liners carry those in search of romance to Paris, Bordeaux, Biarritz, Perpignan, Barcelona, Alicante, Malaga, Seville, Tangiers, Casablanca, Fez, Algiers, Biskra, Tybis, Catania, Naples, Rome, Venice Pisa, Marseilles and Lyon.

Under the supervision of the Imperial Airways of Great Britain the first of these air pleasure cruises will be inaugurated this winter. Starting January 31st, a passenger airplane will make a five weeks tour throughout France, Spain, Egypt and Italy, returning March 5th.

But to the shop-girl who gazes in the window of the Imperial Airways establishment, where a minature air boat is seen gliding over the towns and villages of far-off lands, these tours will be nearly as distant as "Arabian Nights" for the cost of such a trip, 2,275 dollars, is quite as far from her as the realism of "Arabian Nights."

A woman who died recently in Athlone, Ireland, left $13,000 for the celebration of 3,200 Masses.

It is usually a shallow woman who gets a man out of his depth.

NATIONS JOIN IN OLIVE BRANCH PACT

Sir Austen Chamberlain (left), Aristides Briand (right), and Benito Mussolini (center), may come together in peace session that will have important bearing on European political affairs.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI has accepted the olive branch.

The symbol, tendered by Aristides Briand, foreign minister of France, will lead to a meeting between the two statesmen that will clear up the somewhat strained France-Italian situation.

What's more, Sir Austen Chamberlain, England's foreign minister, will probably be a third party to this important conference.

The Duce is in favor of the session. He has informed the Italian Chamber that all points of friction should be wiped away.

MAKING STARS IN FILMDOM PROGRAM

High Salaries Demanded Leads to New Efforts by Producers

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 22—Is this the era of the unknown in the history of motion pictures.

Producers seemingly prefer to establish their own stars rather than pay exorbitant prices demanded by those already arrived, and newcomers are finding favor on the screen as the ready-made celebrities.

The past year has definitely settled the newcomer as a potential favorite, says Director Fred Niblo, who numbers Lois Moran, Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell among the younger generation who have made sensational strides toward screen fame.

Ralph Forbes, a recent recruit from the legitimate stage, was chosen by Niblo to play opposite Lillian Gish in "The Enemy," although many more mature artists competed for the part.

Vilma Banky, who was selected to appear with Ronald Colman in his next picture, "Flower of Spain," was unknown to American film fans when she made her debut in "The Dark Angel."

Gilbert Roland won his cinema spurs as a leading man in Norma Talmadge's "Camille."

"The new arrival to Hollywood should consider his youth and nonentity great assets in his struggle to master the movies, if this year reflects permanent policies," Niblo concludes.

The blondes and brunettes will share honors evenly when F. W. Murnau, noted German director, has completed the cast for "The Four Devils," which he will make on the Fox lot. His is the task of finding two "perfect" girls, one fair and the other dark, for the picture.

Aside from their opposite complexions, Murnau requires that his perfect types be between 17 and 21 years of age, between five feet one and five feet three in height and with figures in proportion to their stature. They also must possess that elusive quality which registers photographically, but stage or screen experience is unnecessary.

Signora Grazia Deledda-Madesani, the winner of the 1926 Nobel Prize in Literature, published her first novel at 15 years of age. Her novels chiefly describe the typical country life of romantic Sardinia and are full of colorful descriptions and strong character sketches.

RITES FRIDAY FOR ACCIDENT VICTIM

Donald Eugene Powell, Aged Eight Months, Dies of Injuries

Funeral rites are to be held this Friday for Donald Eugene Powell, eight months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Powell of Columbus, former Marion residents, who died Tuesday afternoon at White Cross Hospital, Columbus, of injuries sustained about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon when the car in which he, his mother, father and four companions was riding collided with another machine in Columbus. The party were returning to their homes in Columbus after a visit with Marion friends when the accident occurred.

The child died of a fractured skull. His mother and sister, Phyllis Pauline Powell, 3, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Rutledge, who owned the car, Miss Bonnie Reems of Columbus and Miss Martha White, S. Prospect-st, were also slightly injured, extent of which has not been determined.

The Rutledge car, a Chevrolet sedan driven by Mr. Rutledge, was completely demolished. Marion Reeder of Worthington, driver of the other car, a Ford coupe, escaped without injury and his machine with only slight damages. The accident occurred at the intersection of Indianola-av and Oak Grove Park.

The body of the child was brought here yesterday and taken to the home of his aunt, Mrs. A. G. Saunders, 302 Owens-st, where funeral services will take place at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Rev. W. C. Bowman, pastor of the Wesleyan Mission, Toledo-av, will officiate and interment will be in Marion Cemetery. The mother had sufficiently recovered from her injuries to accompany the body here.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Powell formerly resided here and both were born in Marion County. The mother was formerly Miss Pearl Cosart and the father before locating in Columbus, was an employe of the Marion Parking Co. The child, born in Columbus Mar. 27, is survived by his parents and two sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Rutledge were also former Marion residents.

Poverty is no crime, but it is punished like one—by hard labor.

CROYDON'S NEW LIGHT FOR LANDING AT NIGHT

Croydon, Dec. 22—A mobile floodlight, capable of illuminating with a light equal to 75 per cent of daylight, has been installed at the Croydon Aerodrome. It is mounted on a caterpillar tractor to enable it to negotiate rough ground.

When a night landing is to be effected, the light is taken to a corner of the ground towards which the wind is blowing. The aeroplane then lands from behind it into wind and with the pilot back to the source of the light, thus avoiding the glare in his eyes. It illuminates half the aerodrome.

No man is his real self until he has had the opportunity to develop his powers.

If one has had a varied experience he has lived.
